

SALVAGE

DYSTOPIAN FICTION

MARTIN RODOREDA

Dystopian Fiction | ISBN: 978-1-922200-62-4 | RRP $24.95 | 314pp | Release Date: 30 September 2016

Humans have finally laid waste to the environment. The once vibrant Earth is a desolate wasteland, and only the richest can live in comfort. When their meagre existence is threatened by the greedy and powerful, a band of renegades must fight for survival.

MEDIA RELEASE

Excessive mining, human pollution and war have left the earth devastated and all but inhabitable to humans. A Dome built over the city of Sydney and controlled by the tyrant Silmac protects what is possibly the last bastion of civilisation. Metal is scarce and highly prized in a society where even electricity is a luxury.

When Silver is abandoned out in the badlands by her salvage crew, only a chance encounter with an old mutant saves her. She spends a stormy night outside the dome reading an old diary to pass the time

After risking her life to return, she soon finds that the Dome no longer offers the protection it once did, as she faces betrayal, makes new alliances and uncovers secrets that will bring her into conflict with Silmac himself as she learns the true function of her home.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Martin Rodoreda is a Sydney based media professional and writer who loves speculative fiction and ancient history. His writing draws on contemporary themes and seeks to combine action, fiction and social commentary into worlds that are simultaneously realistic and extraordinary. He is passionate about the environment and strives to do his part to ensure a healthy world for future generations.

Martin Rodoreda is available for interview. To request a review copy or to arrange an interview, please contact: Michelle Lovi, Publisher, publicity@odysseybooks.com.au or ph: 0416 018 296

www.odysseybooks.com.au